REPORT OF THE INSPECTOR OF WIRES.

To the Board of Fire Commissioners:

GENTLEMEN: I have the honor to submit herewith my annual report, showing the service performed for the year ending January 31, 1893, covering the inspection of buildings in which electric currents are used for lighting and power service, the underground service of the various companies, the plant of the West End Street Railway Company, the service of the electric lighting companies, work for the maintenance and operation of the Fire-Alarm Telegraph, and other matters properly coming within the jurisdiction of this Bureau:

Number of buildings examined	2,467
Defects reported	234
Defects remedied	141
Isolated plants examined	131
Arc lights examined	1,408
Incandescent lights examined	55,188
Motors examined	418
Notices of installation received	2,152
Number of buildings from which dead and abandoned wires have been removed	1,827
Amount of wire removed miles,	122
Reports of defective wires received	996
Reports of same sent to owners	621
Number of poles in use by the various companies, independent of the West End Street Railway	11,467
Plans of streets, showing location of poles, which have been granted by the Board of Aldermen, now complete and filed in this office	1,682

THE NEW ENGLAND TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

The conduits of this company vary in size from two to fifty ducts, consisting of iron pipe in concrete, cement-lined iron pipe in concrete, creosoted wood-boxes and vitrified clay conduits.

Total length of conduits	20.72 miles
Total miles of ducts	178.23 "
Total number of manholes	437 "

The underground cables of this company have a capacity of from 20 to 200 wires, their total length being 73.09 miles, containing 8,281 miles of wire.

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company have installed in their system about 73,000 incandescent lights, 541 arc lights, 1,033 motors, with total of 3,185 horse-power. They have about 3 miles of overhead wire and about 41 miles of underground service.

The Western Union Telegraph Company have about 550 miles of wire overhead, not including railroad routes, and about 650 miles of underground. The underground system includes about 3 miles of conduit, of trenching, and connects all the railroad depots with the main office, 109 State street.

The Boston Electric Light Company have no underground service, but have about 622 miles of wire on poles and house-tops. They operate about 2,800 arc and 1,800 incandescent lights. About 48 per cent. of the arc lights burn all night, the balance being day and half-night lights. Current is also furnished for 170 motors, which are used for operating printing-presses, ventilators, elevators, etc.

The West End Street Railway Company have 256 miles of track, of which 148 miles are operated by electric cars. They have now running 626 box electric cars, and will have as a corresponding equipment, the coming summer, 850 open cars. To operate these cars they have 233 miles of feeders and 153 miles of trolley wire.

The road is operated from three stations: the Allston, the Cambridge, and the Central station on Albany street.

At the Allston station there are four engines, driving eight 100 horse-power and four 80 horse-power generators. At the Cambridge station there are three engines, which will drive seven 500 K. W. machines.

The ultimate capacity of these engines is about 800 horse-power each. At the Central station there are six engines, which will drive eighteen 500 K. W. machines, and a temporary plant of eleven engines, driving 44 generators of 80 horse-power each.

The maximum total output of current would be 32,300 amperes.

The Charlestown Gas & Electric Company have no underground service, but have about 75 miles of overhead wire, and light 230 arc and 460 incandescent lamps.

The Brookline Gas Light Company have 1,108 incandescent and 111 arc lamps, with 45 miles of wire, which is on poles, covering about ten miles of street surface. They have no underground service.

The Postal Telegraph Cable Company have no underground service, but have about 350 miles of overhead and 34 miles in cables.

The Boston District Messenger Company have 235 miles of overhead wire, but none underground. About 25 miles of wire, which formerly belonged to the Electric Time Company, is now owned by this company, and will soon be taken down.

The Suburban Light & Power Company have no underground service, but have about 75 miles of overhead wire, supplying current to 50 motors, 225 arc and 6,000 incandescent lamps.

Isolated Plants.

There are 154 isolated plants in the city, of 12 or more systems, used principally for lighting purposes, the united dynamo capacity being about 9,850 horse-power.

A number of these plants have undergone extensive changes at the suggestions of this Bureau, but remain in an unsatisfactory condition at the present time.

In this connection I would call your attention to the ordinance governing the inspection of installations for high-power service.

As it now reads I am required to examine and report to the owners or occupants of buildings in which such service is to be established any defects that I may discover, but as no penalty is incurred in case my suggestions are unheeded, many of the defects noticed and reported are not remedied until trouble results from such lack of attention, unless the parties interested may, for their own protection, deem it expedient to act upon the suggestions made to them by me. The leading companies of this city have, however, generally shown a disposition to do everything that I have recommended in the way of correcting defective work, but there are some companies located in other places who do a considerable amount of work in this city, and in most cases they neglect to inform me of their purpose, and when the fact that such work is in progress finally comes to my notice, I frequently find that much of it is poorly done as far as it can be examined, and the greater part of it so concealed as to prevent a proper inspection of it to be made.

Close attention has been given and frequent examinations made of hotels, theatres, and other places of amusement, during the past year, to see that the wiring of these places is properly done and kept in a safe condition. Reports of defects have been made to interested parties, which in some respects have been cheerfully complied with, in two of the theatres the wiring having been almost entirely renewed.

From examination of work done before this Bureau was established I am of the opinion that, while it might have been considered good enough at that time, it falls far short of the requirements of the present day, and, as years of service have added to its other defects, it seems important that many of these installations should be renewed.

Immediate examinations have been made of buildings in which fires have been reported as resulting from electric wires.

Of the thirty-four fires reported, there appears to be no doubt that thirty-one of them were due to electrical causes.

In two instances fires occurred where defects in wiring had been reported to the parties interested and the faults noted had not been remedied. Overhead wires of all descriptions are run in a very careless manner, in many places crossing buildings less than two feet from the roof, which would seriously interfere with the work of the Fire Department, as well as of others who might have occasion to visit the roofs for any purpose.

The present ordinance gives this Bureau no authority whereby it can cause such defects to be remedied, and it seems to be important that it should be changed to meet the requirements of the case; and I would recommend that your honorable Board should take action in the matter with the view of causing such changes to be made in existing ordinances as will oblige all persons intending to establish electrical installations for lighting or power service to notify this Bureau of their purposes before or as soon as the work is commenced, in order that a proper examination of it can be made, and that no current shall be applied to any completed installation until a certificate of approval shall have been issued to the owners from this office.

There should be, as I have already suggested, some definite regulations to cover the manner of placing overhead wires to the effect that no wire shall be less than seven feet from any roof over which it passes, and that it shall not interfere with the free use of fire-escapes, nor drop diagonally from any building across any street in order to enter buildings at a lower point on the opposite side. Not only should the Inspector of Wires have authority under the ordinance to order all electrical work to be done in conformity with established rules, but there should be sufficient penalties attached to make it for the interest of persons engaged in such work to comply with any directions which may be sent to them by him.

During the year many interesting and instructive tests have been made with the test board which was completed and placed in this office just previous to my last annual report.

The testing of safety fuses especially, which have been taken from different places, has shown a condition of things which should be corrected, the majority of these fuses carrying from two to three times their marked carrying capacity, and some of them even more than this. Many samples of wire have been received from different parts of the country for insulation tests, and while this Bureau cannot under existing laws condemn any wire on account of poor insulation it has been considered desirable that it should become informed as to the comparative merits of different kinds of wire, and with the aid of this board tests have been made with such satisfactory results that many questions in dispute have been settled by a practical illustration where argument would have done no more than to leave the matter an open question and still in doubt. In several instances where parties have been notified of defects in their service and have applied at this office for information they have been shown in such tangible form, by the operation of this board, the possibilities of fire and the dangers liable to result from imperfect wiring, as to leave no doubt in their minds that the reports emanating from this office were based on sound principles, the result being that the work reported and proved to be unsafe has been renewed in conformity with my suggestions.

Electrical devices of all descriptions have been submitted by many inventors and others for the purpose of ascertaining whether they will meet with the approval of this Bureau before being applied in service. The board has more than fulfilled my expectations as to its efficiency, and has proved to be a valuable feature in the equipment of this office.

In view of the fact that the time of the examiners now employed is fully occupied principally on new work, owing to the rapidly increasing number of installations and the large extent of territory which they are obliged to cover, and realizing the importance of a rigid examination of the old as well as the new work it has become evident that the present force is inadequate to give to this work the attention that its importance demands, I would therefore respectfully recommend that three additional examiners be appointed in order that the purpose for which this Bureau was created may be more systematically and throughly accomplished.

FIRE-ALARM BRANCH.

The work of new construction and renewal of circuits in this branch has been carried on to a greater extent than usual during the past year, a special force having been employed for this purpose.

I have continued the policy followed in previous years of relieving the overloaded circuits as far as practicable by constructing new ones to cover the same districts, with which a part of the apparatus has been connected. The route of these circuits has been so arranged as to admit of an alternation in the connection of boxes so that no extended succession of them shall depend on the integrity of any single circuit for their successful operation.

All the old circuits covering the districts wherein these new circuits have been constructed have been entirely renewed, making in all 13 circuits, new and old, now completed.

These circuits cover all the districts in City proper and East Boston, all the signal-boxes being grouped and connected into a part of them, while the others are assigned for the service of the alarm bells and gongs. In addition to this new work I have renewed all the wire running along the line of Tremont street as far as Camden street, together with the wires from Summer street, through Federal street, Mt. Washington avenue, Granite, First, and E streets, to Broadway.

I have made use of covered iron wire and No. 10 hard-drawn copper wire in a part of this work, for the purpose of ascertaining their comparative merits by a practical test in service.

No results have as yet been obtained, however, as it will require some time for the deterioration naturally following exposure to the elements, and other causes incidental to active service of the wires to become manifest.

Further details of the new construction and renewal of circuits and other work done for the maintenance of the service are as follows:

Alarm circuits 18, 22, and box gong circuit 34, which were partially built last season, have been completed with entirely new construction throughout.

Alarm circuits, 2, 3, 6, 15, 17, and 30 have been entirely rebuilt, and the system has been extended by the construction of new circuits 25, 26, and 27, in City proper, and two circuits in East Boston, 28 and 29.

Partial reconstruction has been made of circuits 1, 9, 11, 24, 33, and 5 telephone, from a point on Federal street to the corner of Broadway and E street, South Boston, and new wire has been run for circuits 9, 10, 24, 29, and telephone circuit 13, on Norfolk street, Dorchester, from Washington street to the N. Y. & N. E. Railroad bridge, and on Harvard street from the bridge to Blue Hill avenue.

New wires have also been run for the same circuits on River street, from Centre avenue to Fremont street.

The wires on Federal street and Dorchester avenue, from Federal street-bridge to Field's Corner, comprising a part of circuits 1, 9, 10, 11, 24 33 and telephone circuit 13 have been transferred to the long-distance telephone poles, using No. 10 copper wire previously run.

Circuits 11 and 33 and telephone circuits 13 and 14 have been renewed on Congress street from High to A street with new No. 9 iron wire.

All the wires in circuits 2, 7, 8, 13, and 17 and telephone circuits 7 and 19, running on structures along the line of Tremont street, have been renewed with No. 9 iron wire from City Hall to Camden street.

New wires have also been run for circuits 7, 19, and 31 on Dale street from Warren to Washington street, and for circuits 12, 16, and 32 from City Hall to Warren bridge.

A circuit has been run from the house of Engine 32 to one of the houses in Somerville, which is operated by a "tailing" connection with the gong at Engine 32, for the purpose of giving alarms to the Somerville department in order that assistance may be rendered in case a fire should occur on the Charlestown side of the line of sufficient magnitude to make such assistance necessary.

Telephone circuits 6, 15, 23, and 25 have been made metallic and circuit 23 has been equipped with high resistance generator magnets connected in multiple, for the purpose of overcoming the induction which has been especially bad in this circuit.

A new telephone in the basement of City Hall has been added to the service.

All the wires of the system leading from the structures on City Hall into the head-room have been renewed with No. 16 Clark wire. About 190 miles of No. 9 galvanized iron wire, 16 miles covered iron, 21 miles No. 10 hard-drawn copper, and 18,000 feet No. 16 Clark covered wire have been used in the new construction, renewal and repair work herein described.

About 1,300 cross-arms of various sizes are now in use, and attachments are made to about 200 poles and structures belonging to various companies by means of extensions.

Eighty-five new 10 pin cross-arms have been placed on poles of the New England Telephone Company on Dorchester avenue for future use.

A 10-conductor aerial cable 1,100 feet in length has been run at Warren bridge for connection with the East Boston circuits, and shorter lengths have been placed at Federal-street and Mount Washington-avenue bridges and at various other points for connecting apparatus in the department houses.

New sub-marine cables have been laid at the Charlestown end of Chelsea bridge and bridges on Dover, Federal, and Meridian streets.

Seventy-three new poles have been set, 71 old ones taken down, 38 new structures built, and 28 old ones removed during the year.

New apparatus boards have been placed in the residence of the chief and houses of Engine No. 5 and Hook & Ladder No. 12.

Seventeen new signal-boxes have been placed and connected with the system during the year.

Underground Service.

Cables containing 61 conductors have been laid in one of the conduits of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company from a point on Waltham street, through Harrison avenue, Beach, South, Summer, High, and Pearl streets, Post Office square, Water, Washington, and School streets to the City Hall.

Two kinds of cable have been used; one manufactured by the Okonite Company and the other by the Eastern Electric Cable Company.

They are placed in a three-inch iron pipe laid in concrete, with T joints for side connections, and are $16{,}059\frac{5}{10}$ feet in length.

Total length of conductors is $613{,}629\frac{5}{10}$ feet.

The work of connection is now in progress and when completed it is intended to utilize it for service in place of the overhead wires now running in this section of the city.

Although it is too early for me to speak of underground service in this system from any practical experience, it appears from the results obtained by other companies that it may no longer be regarded in the light of an unsolved problem, and in view of the fact that overhead wires have become a standing menace to the public safety, the dangers from which are being frequently demonstrated in various ways, and taking into consideration the constantly increasing difficulty experienced by this Branch in maintaining the efficiency of its service, I would recommend that your Board should take such action as you may deem expedient for the purpose of extending the work in this direction as far as practicable during the coming season.

Dynamo Experiments.

During the summer I have been trying a series of exhaustive experiments for the purpose of ascertaining whether it would be practicable to substitute dynamos for the gravity battery now in use in this service. A motor-dynamo, or direct current transformer, of comparatively low voltage, was placed in the office of the Inspector of Wires and connected with one of the circuits by means of wires running to the Fire-Alarm headquarters.

The first tests were made with great caution, a supplementary gravity being held in readiness to be applied at a moment's notice should any failure in the experiment be developed, but from the commencement it proved to be substantially successful, only a few features requiring to be changed and those of such a character as to be easily effected. After a few weeks of trial of the single circuit connection I procured an apparatus of higher power equipped with a set of controlling resistance boxes, to which I connected a group of six circuits whose battery requirements were as exacting as any others in the entire system.

There had been an aggregate of three hundred and fifty modified gravity cells in use to supply these circuits with a sufficient amount of current for their service, and I found no difficulty whatever in obtaining from this dynamo all that was required with an excess of current in reserve to supply for more circuits if necessary. The constancy and steadiness of the current thus obtained, together with the facility for instantaneously increasing or decreasing it to meet the varying conditions of the circuits, have thoroughly convinced me, after a trial of several months, that the dynamo is greatly superior in all respects to any form of galvanic battery yet used in fire-alarm service, and I recommend that the new plant which is to be established in the Fire Department headquarters building on Bristol street shall be entirely equipped with this system. A combination switch-board, so constructed as to admit of an interchange of connections between dynamos and circuits, will be necessary to properly carry out the system above described, and I have arranged a plan whereby any dynamo in the series may be connected with any circuit or group of circuits at will without loss of time. While it is obvious that any dynamo system would not be safe for this service if it depended on one source of supply for motive power, I have no hesitation in confidently and earnestly recommending it for adoption in view of the fact, that, in addition to establishing an independent plant for furnishing light and power to the headquarters building, it is quite feasible, as I have already ascertained, to utilize the power of several companies now engaged in business requiring currents of high potential.

To do this it will be necessary to make such arrangements with these companies as will enable me to use either service at a moment's notice, and there will be no difficulty in making such arrangements, as a proper connection of wires and switches will easily effect the desired result.

In conclusion, I desire to say that I consider this to be one of the most important improvements in fire-alarm service which has been considered in recent years, and hope that you will take such action in the premises as to insure its incorporation in the new plant soon to be established.

Respectfully submitted,

B. S. Flanders,
Inspector of Wires.

A constant watch is kept at the headquarters, City Hall, night and day, by the operators. Each set of operators have assigned to them certain hours of duty, during which time they are responsible for the correct working of the apparatus in giving alarms, and all testing of the circuits and other details pertaining to the service. An automatic arrangement is connected with the receiving apparatus, by which assistance may be called from the sleeping apartments, if at any time the operators should be suddenly incapacitated by illness from performing their duties. No operator is permitted to sleep during his watch, unless expressly relieved by some one else, and by consent of the Inspector.

Each operator is accountable to the Inspector for any mistakes that may occur at the office during his hours of duty.

An accurate account is kept of the time of giving each alarm, and of the station from which it originates, and all other necessary information.

There are 556 fire-alarm boxes, divided as follows, viz.:

Boston	164
South Boston	53
East Boston	48
Roxbury	79
Dorchester	81
Charlestown	44
West Roxbury	50
Brighton	36
Chelsea	1
