

LIEUT PATRICK J. V. KELLEY NOW.

Hoseman of Engine 3 Promoted and Assigned to Northampton St—Four Firemen Appointed on Probation.

Fire Commissioner Russell has promoted hoseman Patrick J. V. Kelley of engine 3, corner of Bristol st and Harrison av, to a lieutenantcy. He will be sent to engine 23, Northampton st, to take the place of Lieut Sawyer, who will take charge of the new combination truck at West Roxbury. Lieuts Kelley and Sawyer will assume their new charges tomorrow morning.

LIEUT PATRICK J. V. KELLEY.

Lieut Kelley was appointed to the department May 25, 1891, and was assigned to engine 13, where he served as hoseman until April, 1895, when, at his request, he was transferred to engine 3, where he has since served.

His promotion comes as a reward for diligent service, and he has received hearty congratulations both inside and outside the department. By the firemen he is known as a brave worker, and is considered one of the best hosemen ever attached to engine 3.

Lieut Kelley was born in Boston. He is married and lives on Union pk st.

Lieuts Fitzgerald of engine 9, East Boston, and Gillen of 10, West end, have exchanged posts of duty at their own request.

Col Russell yesterday appointed four new men to the department on probation, under the civil service rules. They are Thomas F. Cooney, assigned to chemical 10, Eustis st, Roxbury; Joseph M. Ferrela, engine 44, Center st, Roxbury; Coleman E. Clougherty, ladder 17, Harrison av, and Daniel G. Gearin, ladder 1, Friend st. These appointments go into effect tomorrow.

William P. Costello of chemical 10 will take Lieut Kelley's place as hoseman of engine 3.
